

Myriam Vallières

Youth Entrepreneurship Advisor

Myriam Vallières was born in Lévis. Her studies in human resources led her to live in Quebec, Sherbrooke and Chicoutimi. In this context, she studied the history and anthropology of First Nations, which allowed her to become quickly familiar with the specific context of Aboriginal communities in Quebec.

Myriam earned a Bachelor's degree in History from Université de Sherbrooke. It is during her studies that she had the opportunity to take her first steps in business by getting involved in a SME. At the same time, she began a career as a member of the Royal Canadian Navy, which she has been actively pursuing for more than 10 years.

Her highly diversified experience enabled her to develop a number of skills, notably in communications and pedagogy. Being a bilingual person, Myriam is able to convey her knowledge with passion and enthusiasm in both English and French. She has worked with young people across the country to complete successfully a number of projects, whether of entrepreneurial or other nature.

Myriam has been acting as advisor to the young entrepreneurs since October 2017. Through her unique approach, she offers personalised professional guidance adapted to today's First Nations cultural realities.
